Raising Your Cancer Child

Like the Little Crab, your Cancer Sun child will be sensitive, kind, intuitive and very attached to home and family as their source of security, safety and belonging

Little Cancers are very loving and affectionate, and at the same time very easily hurt. So, they will often need to retreat to a comforting space where they can reflect, soothe and recharge their mood. This could be in someone's arms, in the privacy of their own room or doing something that feels self-nurturing.

Cancer sun signs will feel most loved and nurtured through affection, guidance and teaching from mom or a mother figure. Teach your little Cancer the value of independence and self-trust and you will have a secure, confident, happy and successful little crab.

Cancer Sun Parenting Tips:

- Give them plenty of time outs or quiet time in a safe place to cuddle with a stuffed animal or pet to promote healthy self-care and emotional calm.
- Encourage them to venture out into the world to build independence, self-sufficiency, confidence, and security while teaching them the value for them to always have a safe place to retreat when needed.
- Avoid teasing, harsh punishment or any threat of leaving as a way to discipline or teach lessons. This can instill insecurities, low self-esteem, and fears that will affect them long-term.
